

NATIONAL LEAGUE
OF CITIES

CITIES STRONG TOGETHER

Congressional City Conference

Energy, Environment, and Natural Resources Committee

Environmental Protection Agency

Development of Community Affordability Framework For Water and Wastewater Projects

Brenna Isman
Project Director,
National Academy of Public Administration

Michael Pagano
*Dean, College of Urban Planning and Public Affairs, University of Illinois at Chicago
National Academy of Public Administration Fellow Expert Panel Member*

Project Update and Expected Outcomes From Today

- Who we are
 - NAPA is congressionally chartered, independent, and non-partisan
 - Professional Study Team and Panel of Expert Fellows
- How we work
 - Research and analysis methodology
 - Timeline
 - Final deliverable
- About the survey
 - EPA's Community Affordability Framework
 - Integrated Planning Approach
 - Role of Cost Benefit Analysis
 - Innovative Solutions to Help Meet CWA Water Quality Standards

Project Update and Expected Outcomes From Today

- Why we are asking for your input
 - Your time is valuable
 - Stakeholder feedback is critical to this process
 - Cities are directly impacted by Clean Water Act requirements
 - Each city has its own story
 - We can't do this alone!
- How you can make the most impact
 - Take the survey
 - Share the link and encourage others to participate
- Questions and Answers
 - How can we best address the varied needs of cities?
 - How can we best reflect diverse impacts, constraints, competing issues of cities?

Please feel free to contact us:

Brenna Isman – bisman@napawash.org

Michael Pagano - mapagano@uic.edu

For more information about the National Academy of Public Administration,
please visit our website at www.napawash.org

Thank you for your time!

